About MICHAEL

I am an architectural historian and an archaeologist. I have an undergraduate degree in Anthropology and Classical Civilizations from Indiana University, a graduate degree in Greek and Roman Archaeology and another graduate degree in Architecture and Urban Design from UCLA. My main areas of research are Roman urban infrastructure and my particular area of expertise is the perception of Pompeian interactions and how they served as navigational tools in the ancient world.

Hi, my name is Mike. I am currently not working in the office, but I can be reached via email or through the Canvas inbox to set up an appointment. I also have student virtual hours on Tuesdays from 12:30 - 2:00 pm, where students can meet with me to discuss any concerns they may have about course material, assignments, their grades or just anything else in general.
