Approval Date: 12/7/21

Whereas, the declaration of an emergency due to the Covid-19 pandemic necessitated the immediate transition from an on-ground instructional modality to a remote instructional modality for all courses offered by the college;

Whereas, emergency-only distance education approval by the SMC Curriculum Committee authorizes those courses to be offered remotely only during a declared emergency;

Whereas, the Academic Senate officially recognized synchronous instruction as a fully-approved distance education modality on June 8 2021 and this change in allowed distance education modalities will result in departments re-examining whether courses approved for emergency-only distance education will be submitted for full distance education approval;

Whereas, department chairs are already engaged in scheduling for Spring 2022 and there is insufficient time for departments to discuss, investigate, propose, and seek approval for new fully online distance education before Spring 2022 schedules are set;

Whereas, the potential of an abrupt and unplanned end to emergency-only distance education approvals will cause serious damage to student educational progress and to the ability of departments to meet student need in this on-going pandemic;

Resolved, the Academic Senate recommends that in the Fall 2021 semester each discipline/department discuss and investigate the impact of the new distance education guidelines allowing for synchronous instruction, and decide whether they intend to convert any emergency-only approved distance education courses to fully approved.1

Resolved, the Academic Senate recommends that all current emergency-only distance education authorizations shall continue through Summer 2022. After Summer 2022, any emergency-only distance education authorization will take effect only in the event of an emergency declaration by the District.
